The diagram illustrates the assembly of the CP i60-200. It shows three main components: a top cover, a central column, and a base unit. The top cover is a rectangular plate with a central circular opening. The central column is a cylindrical component with a textured surface and a label that reads 'PULLEY'. The base unit is a large, rectangular component with a textured surface and a central circular opening. The components are shown in a vertical arrangement, indicating their relative positions in the assembly.
